

Hoosier Roads Will Be Marked

LAFAYETTE, June 6.—Indiana's network of more than 84,000 miles of highways are going to be properly marked under some uniform plan and the state's 166,000 farm homes will be marked by numbers so that a farm may be located as readily as the average city home, if action started by the Indiana County Commissioners' Association, the Indiana Highway Supervisors' Association, and the Joint Highway Research Project at Purdue University bears fruit.

Recently Gerald McCarty of Brook, Newton county commissioner and the president of the Indiana County Commissioners' Association, Claude Hodson, then executive director, and Leaton Day of Lebanon, secretary of the Indiana County Highway Supervisors' Association met with the Purdue officials in charge of the highway research project, proposing that a uniform method of marking all county roads be devised, and also that a uniform system of numbering farm homes be worked out at the same time.

The project, provided for by legislation enacted at the 1953 session of the Indiana General Assembly, received the official blessing of the advisory committee of the Joint Highway Research Project, which met a few days ago at the University. The advisory committee named Arthur K. Branham with Harold Michael and John Baerwald, research engineers, to work out a satisfactory method of numbers, letters of the alphabet, or use of none already used in designating roads, as the road markers. The number of farm homes would mean the establishment of north and south and also east and west meridian lines through a county, generally from the county seat, and the numbers of farm homes to be issued on the same basis as the street numbers for city homes, preliminary discussions indicate.

It's Blackwood For Bridge

False-Carding Will Fool Partner More Than Declarer

When Mr. Muzzy wins a trick with a king when he could have won it with a queen, he is not trying to fool anybody. He is not consciously false-carding. That's just the way he plays. But he's a devil with a holding of queen-jack doubleton. He's really tricky here. He always follows suit with the queen when declarer leads the ace.

South (Mr. Champion)

H - 7 5

The bidding:

South West North East
1 S Pass 2 D Pass
2 S Pass 3 H Pass
3 S Pass 4 N T Pass
5 H Pass 6 S All Pass

Of course, this sort of thing is bound to have its moments. Now and then it will pick up a trick. But you will find that indiscriminate false-carding will fool partner more often than it will mislead declarer.

Both Mr. Dale and Mrs. Keen false-carded in today's hand to flim-flam Mr. Champion out of his six-spade contract. Each felt with "normal" defensive play, Mr. Champion would make his slam and that desperate measures were therefore justified.

The king of hearts was opened. It appeared to Mr. Champion that a successful squeeze play would be necessary to bring in 12 tricks and to set the stage, he let the king of hearts win. Mrs. Keen then led the queen of hearts and dummy's ace won. Three rounds of trumps were cashed and Mr. Dale discarded his two remaining hearts.

Next came dummy's two top diamonds and a third diamond which Mr. Champion ruffed. On this last trick, Mr. Dale played the queen of diamonds. As he hoped, Mr. Champion then placed the jack in Mrs. Keen's hand.

On the following lead of a trump, Mrs. Keen dropped the deuce of hearts, the four of clubs went on from dummy and Mr. Dale played the trey of clubs. The last trump brought the 10 of clubs from Mrs. Keen. The now useless 10 of diamonds was played from the board and Mr. Dale threw another club.

Now Mr. Champion led a small club to dummy's king. Holding queen-jack alone at this point, Mrs. Keen promptly dropped the queen. Can you blame Mr. Champion for picturing her last two cards as the high heart and the jack of diamonds?

Feeling sure he had the hand cased accurately, he returned a small club and finessed his nine spot. Mrs. Keen won with the lone jack and cashed her good heart for a two trick set.

—GOOD OLD DAYS

time Peter Applegate came, there was some preachers came about, belonging to the Christian church. The first one I ever heard of preached at Peter Applegate's house, and so far as I know, about all the members of the old New Lights church united with the Christian church. Therefore the New Lights in this county became extinct as a church. The Methodists organized a church in John Denny's neighborhood, of which he was an active and zealous member. This church held their meetings generally in what was then called "Denny's schoolhouse," and became quite a flourishing little church. The Baptists also built a house near Fillmore, known by the name of "Old Salem," and organized a church in it. Another one on Limestone, south of the National Road, Benjamin Parks, a well known citizen to most of the old settlers, was one of the leading Baptist preachers in those churches at an early time.

OBITUARY

Roy Robbins, whose memory we honor today, was born Wallace LeRoy Robbins on Sept. 5, 1878 to John and Martha Durman Robbins in neighboring Parke County. He was one of a family of six children, one of whom, his only brother, James, preceded him in death.

Early in his life Roy affiliated with the Friends Church near Marshall where he has retained his membership.

He was united in marriage to Cora Ray Gilkey of Putnam County on Aug. 25, 1901. Their early married life was spent in Illinois, where the son, Paul, was born. Later they returned to Indiana, coming to the Fincastle community about 1905, where the second son, Orren Ray, was born.

Roy was an active farmer until ill health forced him to "slow down", but even then he continued to assist in farm work and stock raising.

Roy's ability to laugh and joke with his fellow-men, even to the last hour of his life gained for him many life-long friends—truly there was music in his soul.

Roy leaves surviving his companion of more than fifty years, the two sons and six grandchildren, John R. Larry Dean, and Donald Joe of Crowdsville and Barbara, who is graduating next month from the Methodist Hospital School of Nursing; Dick and Nancy of Russellville, and four sisters, Louella Cox of Indianapolis, Susie Beck of Hammond, Maude Pfeister of Waco, Tex., and Pearl Hayworth of Montezuma. Also surviving are fourteen nieces and nephews.

Looking At Life

By Erich Brandeis

There is altogether too much specialization in our modern life, Edward McCormick, president of the New York Stock Exchange, told a college audience in Arizona.

"Prepare your students for the multitude of economic and sociological problems inherent in our dynamic capitalistic system" he told the college faculty.

That "dynamic capitalistic system" of ours has become so involved that specialization is almost inevitable.

The days of the one little ledger are over. The bookkeeper in any halfway good-sized firm has to know double entry, financial statements, monthly reports, pay-rolls and whatnot.

The bookkeeping school, training specialists, is the necessary result of all this required specialized knowledge.

Short-hand, typing and secretarial schools, and colleges of business administration, have sprung up all over the country and the services of their graduates are in ever increasing demand.

In every business house you will find specialists. But specialization does not necessarily hold its practitioners back from reaching the top.

After all, Dwight Eisenhower was a specialist, too. He was educated at West Point strictly for a military life.

But by natural gifts, ambition and brains he rose to the highest post in the land—and so far he seems to be doing pretty gosh darn well in it.

There was one remark, in McCormick's speech, with which I don't quite agree.

He said "articulate leaders who can and will express themselves are of special importance today."

There isn't a luncheon meeting or banquet at which "leaders" all over the country don't get up and make speeches. Too many of them talk a lot but say very little.

Articulate comes from the Latin and means "to utter distinctly."

There certainly is no dearth of distinct utterances.

Articulation has nothing to do with IDEAS, it means merely the ability to use a lot of words and to speak them distinctly.

Some of the brainiest men in many walks of life are extremely inarticulate.

Some others, completely void of ideas, simply went to one of the speech-making schools and became highly articulate.

Schools can teach you how to talk, but they can't put ideas into empty heads.

On his 69th birthday, Harry Truman was taking a stroll. A boy who was running for president of his student body, handed him a campaign card. The ex-President read it and said to the "Shake everybody's hand, ask about their friends and relatives, and you'll get along."

I am giving you this example only to show you the meaning of the word "articulate" and the difference between it and ideas.

What we need in this country today is NOT many leaders with more WORDS but a few leaders with better IDEAS.

THE FOURTH "R"

Some American pioneers believed that the limit of education was the teaching of "readin', 'ritin', and 'rithmetic." How far education has gone beyond that crude idea!

It has dared so many spectacular things that unless Man's spiritual progress keeps pace with his scientific achievements, the results may destroy him.

What we need most today is education in the most important "R" of all—Religion.

Here is where the Church—through its Sunday Schools and Vacation Church Schools—steps in to help save civilization from itself. We must strengthen the fourth "R" or the other three will mean nothing.

Unless education is made to include the knowledge and the use of moral and spiritual facts, all the rest will be in vain.

If you are not interested in the Church and its educational program, think of it in terms of what it can do for your children. Think of it in terms of insurance against what must be a black future for us all if the higher values are neglected.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.
